STATEMENT OF ISSUE

Did Robert Alfred sell or otherwise transfer control of his IRCC permit in 1969 without approval from the appropriate regulatory authority? If so, what is an appropriate penalty? How does it impact the requested ex_parte transfer from his estate to his widow?

Based upon all of the proceedings herein, the Administrative Law Judge makes the following:

FINDINGS OF FACT

1. Robert Alfred and Florian Dittrich came to know each other as truckers in the New Ulm area during the 1950s and 1960s.

2. Florian Dittrich began driving for his father's liv doing business as Florian Dittrich Trucking, he was hauling livestock to South St. Paul and freight back to the New Ulm area. Ex. 5, pp.«6-7. By April of 1969, Dittrich had between two and four straight trucks. The precise amount of revenues are unknown, but it was almost certainly less than $10,000 per year. Ex. 5, p. 32.

3. Robert Alfred operated a sole proprietorship under the name of Robert Alfred Trucking. He had only one truck, a 1951 GMC livestock truck. He had a "grandfather" irregular route permit which contained no geographic or commodity restrictions. He, like Dittrich, would carry livestock (primarily) from the New Ulm area up to South St. Paul, and then general freight back to the New Ulm area. Ex. 5, p. 18.

4. Robert Alfred was 62 years old in 1968. At some time in late 1968, Alfred approached Dittrich with a proposal that they work together. Alfred wanted to cut down on the amount of driving he had to do. Ex. 5, p. 14. The two talked back and forth for several months until finally, in May of 1969, they entered into a formal contract. Id. at pp. 17-18. The contract, drafted by Alfred's attorney, is unambiguous and relatively brief. It is reproduced in pertinent part below:

AGREEMENT

THIS AGREEMENT made and entered into this _10_ day of May, 1969, by and between Robert J. Alfred . . . first party, and Florian Dittrich . . . second party.

WHEREAS, first party owns a 1951 GMC livestock and freight truck together with other equipment and a socalled White Permit Plate granted by the Minnesota Public Service

Commission as an irregular route common carrier carrying statewide authority, and

WHEREAS, the parties understand that the laws of the State of Minnesota and the regulations of the Minnesota Public Service Commission provide that the purchaser of a permit will only be extended authority to the extent of the experience of operations in the two-year period immediately preceding the transfer and,

WHEREAS, the parties desire to operate for at least two years from the date hereof to acquire the broadest possible authority when formal application is made for transfer of the authority,

NOW, THEREFORE, in consideration of the sum of Twenty-four Hundred . . . Dollars paid by second party to first party, the receipt of which is hereby acknowledged by first party, the parties hereto agree as follows:

1. First party hereby . . . sells . . . to second party all of his right, title and interest in a 1951 GMC livestock and freight truck together with allied equipment and all of his right, title, and interest in the socalled White Permit Plate as an irregular route common carrier issued by the Minnesota Public Service Commission which has statewide authority.

2. It is agreed that the title to the said truck as it is registered with the Department of Motor Vehicles for the State of Minnesota shall continue to remain in the name of the first party and that the authority as an irregular route common carrier granted by the Minnesota Public Service Commission shall remain in the first party until such time as the second party, in his sole discretion, notifies first party of his intention to seek the formal transfer at which time the first party agrees . . . that he will immediately sign the necessary documents to effectuate such transfer of the above described truck, equipment and Minnesota Public Service Commission authority as an irregular route common carrier. It is specifically understood by and between the parties hereto that the second party is the actual owner of the above described truck, equipment, and Minnesota Public Service Commission authority as an irregular route

3. The parties hereto agree that they will operate as D & A Truck Lines for such period of time as the second party shall decide in his sole discretion.

4. Second party shall actually operate the said D & A Truck Lines, be responsible for all expenses of operation, and shall receive all income and profits therefrom. It is agreed second party shall also be responsible for any losses which may occur in the operation of said D & A truck lines.

The agreement is notarized and signed with the signatures of Robert J. Alfred and Florian Dittrich. Ex. 5, Ex. B. Dittrich did pay Alfred $2400. Ex. 5, p. 45.

5. The law in effect between 1965 and 1973 provided for the sale or transfer of permits, but only upon Order of the Commission or Department. The law further prohibited the sale of a permit to any person who already held a permit or certificate. The law also restricted the scope of any transferred permit to the scope of operations actually exercised in the two years immediately preceding the transfer. These provisions of Minn. Stat. § 221.151 remained unchanged from 1965 to 1973.

6. At some point in the spring of 1971, Dittrich and Alfred had a conversation with a Don Roble, who was a motor transportation representative with the Minnesota Department of Public Service. He worked in the New Ulm area. During the course of this conversation, they discussed the fact that a formal transfer of the permit from Alfred to Dittrich might be detrimental in that the statewide scope would be cut back to the scope actually exercised in the prior two years. It is also likely that Roble informed them of the prohibition against transfers to an existing permit holder.

7. By letter dated April 19, 1971, Alfred informed the Public Service Commission that he was "turning the full management of the Robert Alfred Trucking . . . over to Florian and/or Rosemary Dittrich," and that he was giving them full authority to deal with the Commission in the future. Ex. 5, Ex. «D. On June 7, 1971, Robert O. Dale, Assistant Division Director of the Motor, Bus and Truck Division of the Department of Public Service replied that division had changed its files to comport with the request, but that all service must be performed in the name of Robert Alfred, d/b/a D & A Truck Line.

Ex. 5, Ex. E.

8. D & A Truck Line grew substantially over the 1970s and 1980s. Interstate authority was received sometime in the mid-1970s, but leaving that aside, the intrastate mileage and revenue grew substantially. For example, in 1971, Dittrich reported 28,000 Minnesota miles and $11,850 Minnesota revenue. By 1982, there were 302,017 miles and $747,142 in revenue. By 1987, there were 1,007,439 miles and $1,633,022 in Minnesota revenue. These figures include the operation of IRCC 6955, as well as Dittrich's own livestock operation and his other trucking income. Dittrich's financial records are so intertwined that it is impossible to separate out the operations of IRCC 6955 from the other operations. See, for example, Ex. 5, Ex. C, particularly the affidavits attached thereto. However, there is no question but that the business has grown substantially. For example, immediately after the contract there were between three to five trucks. By the end of 1987 there were 19 trucks and 46 trailers. Id.

9. During the 1970s and into the 1980s, Robert Alfred remained a part-time employee of D & A Truck Line. He did some driving, but that gradually declined until he stopped around 1976. Tr. 91. But he spent more and more time doing maintenance work. Eventually, in 1981 or 1982, Robert Alfred was replaced by another person as mechanic. Tr. 96. In addition to these functions, however, Alfred had an unusual relationship with Florian Dittrich, which has been compared to a "father-son" relationship. It had emotional overtones that transcended a mere business relationsh thought into the operation, despite the fact that Alfred had sold his interest in it back in 1969. He did not receive any share of the revenues or otherwise participate in the financial success of the firm, other than as a part-time employee. Tr. 56-57. Alfred wanted to see it succeed for emotional reasons that substituted for the more ordinary financial incentives. Tr. 56. This relationship, however, did not give Alfred the right to control the business. Florian and Rosemary Dittrich had the sole right to control the business.

10. In 1982 or 1983, Dittrich formed a corporation named "D & A Trucklines, Inc." The name was subsequently changed to "D & A Truck Line, Inc." This corporation was 80% owned by Florian Dittrich, and 20% by his wife, Rose Dittrich. Robert Alfred did not own any part of the corporation. Ex. 6, p. 33. Ex. 5, Ex. C. All of the operating equipment used in the operation of IRCC Permit No. 6955 is owned by the corporation or by the Dittrichs individually. Tr. 40. The terminal out of which operations are conducted is owned by the Dittrichs, and leased to the corporation. Tr. 39. All revenues generated under the permit are comingled in the corporate checking account with other Dittrich operations. Tr. 43. All workers and creditors are paid through the corporate checking account. Tr. 41. The bonuses and dividends available to the Dittrichs as sole shareholders of the corporation are directly influenced by the profits or losses generated by the permit. Tr. pp. 44-46. The Dittrichs have assumed all of the transportation risks related to the operation under the permit. Robert Alfred did not participate in any formula for the division of permit revenues. Tr. 57. He owned none of the equipment, and incurred no financial risk. Tr. pp. 57-58.

11. On December 26, 1984, Robert Alfred died following a short hospitalization. He was 78 years old.

12. Alfred had executed a codicil to his will on May 10, 1969 (the same day that he entered into the agreement with Dittrich). Rather than take pursuant to his will and that codicil, Virginia Alfred (his widow) renounced it and petitioned the probate court for an allowance of personal property. On March 23, 1989, the Last Will and Testament of Robert Alfred, including the codicil, was presented for allowance as part of a petition for determination of descent. The sole items of property for which determination of descent was petitioned were household furnishings and a 1951 GMC livestock and freight truck with "white plate authority #6955 from the State of Minnesota". On April 5, 1989, Virginia Alfred petitioned for allowance of personal property, seeking all household goods, the 1951 GMC truck and the IRCC authority. A hearing was held on April 24, 1989. No person appeared in opposition to the petition. By Order dated April 24, 1989, District Judge Warren E. Litynski granted Virginia Alfred's petition and awarded to Virginia Alfred the household furnishings, the 1951 GMC truck, and "white plate authority #6955". Ex. 1 and Ex. 5, Ex. B.

13. The 1951 GMC truck had been sold or disposed of by Florian Dittrich long before 1989. It was never physically in the possession of either Florian Dittrich or Virginia Alfred in 1989 or 1990. Id. Tr. 42-43.

14. The only monies paid to Virginia Alfred by the Dittrichs or D & A Truck Line in 1988, 1989, and 1990 consist of the following checks, drawn on the D & A corporate account (Ex. 6, Exs. H, I and J):

Date	Amount
1-06-88	$97.95
8-12-88	195.90
1-13-89	195.90
6-19-89	245.90
2-23-90	195.90
7-05-90	1

Neither of the Dittrichs could explain the basis for these amounts. The gist of their testimony was that Virginia Alfred would call and ask for a check in a specific amount, and Rosemary Dittrich would make out the check with no idea of what it was for or how the amount was calculated. Ex. 6, Exs. H, I and J, and Ex. 6, pp. 14-19; Tr. 33, 69-70 and 78-83. Virginia Alfred suffered a serious stroke in the fall of 1989 and was placed in a nursing home. Her ability to communicate and think on any specific issue was impaired. Affidavit of Florian Dittrich dated December 20, 1990. On August 20, 1990, an Order appointing a general guardian of the person and estate of Virginia Alfred was entered by the Brown County District Court appointing Leo Alfred to be the guardian of Virginia Alfred. Ex. 2. As of December 20, 1990, her doctor indicated, "She still is not oriented to time and place. . . . I believe she still has persistent impaired judgment." Letter from Basil C. LeBlanc, M.D., to Mr. Tom Donnelly dated December 20, 1990. It is beyond the realm of believability that in February of 1990, Mrs. Alfred was in a position to call either Florian or Rosemary Dittrich and request a check for such a specific amount as $195.90 without there being some knowledge on the part of the Dittrichs as to the nature of the payment or at least how the amount was computed. The Dittrichs' professed ignorance regarding these checks on this point is not credible.

14. Considering the very substantial assets and revenues of D & A Truck Line, Inc. for the years 1988-1990, the payments to Virginia Alfred of a few hundred dollars in very precise amounts are not consistent with her ownership of IRCC Permit No. 6955. There is no evidence of any payments to the Estate of Robert Alfred.

Procedural_History_of_this_Case

15. On February 24, 1989, Quast Transfer, Inc. filed a formal complaint with the Minnesota Transportation Regulation Board. The complaint raised two issues regarding D & A Truck Line. The first was that IRCC Permit No. 6955 had been unlawfully assigned or transferred from Robert Alfred to Florian Dittrich.

The second was that D & A Truck Line was being operated as a regular route common carrier. Answers to the complaint were filed with the Board by D & A Truck Line, Inc. and Florian Dittrich, and also by the Estate of Robert Alfred.

On April 19, 1989, the Board issued a Notice of Hearing and Statement of Complaint. This set a hearing for July, and listed both of the issues described above. Copies were sent to the parties and counsel of record, and a capsule description of the Notice was published in the Board's weekly calendar from April 28 onward.

16. On May 22, 1989, the Board received an application for the ex parte transfer of IRCC Permit No. 6955 from Robert Alfred (deceased) to Virginia Alfred, his widow. Attached to it was the Order permitting selection of property issued by Judge Litynski on April 24.

17. On June 7, the Board received a letter from the attorney representing Quast in the "complaint case". The letter indicates that Quast does not believe that the requested ex parte transfer complies with the law, and that the matter must be assigned for hearing. Quast raises two grounds for its position: (1) that in fact the permit was transferred from Alfred to Dittrich some time ago, and thus this would not be a bona fide transfer, and (2) «Dittrich controls both his own livestock permit and this IRCC permit, and the substance of this ex parte transaction is the formal transfer of the IRCC permit to Dittrich, which is not a bona fide transfer.

18. On June 8, the attorney for the estate of Robert Alfred responded to Quast's letter, essentially arguing that Quast had no standing to object to the ex parte transfer, and that there was no reason why the transfer could not be approved forthwith.

19. On June 12, 1989, the first prehearing conference in the ca

20. On July 23, 1989, the Board published notice of the petition for ex parte transfer in its weekly calendar, setting a protest date of July 13.

21. On July 10, Quast submitted a Protest to the ex parte transfer petition. Quast alleged a number of grounds for its Protest, the most important of which are: (1) that Alfred effectively sold or transferred the permit to Florian Dittrich some time ago, and that the ex parte transfer statute applies only in cases where there is a bona fide transfer to members of the immediate family, and (2) there is presently pending a formal complaint in the matter. Quast recommended to the Board that the ex_parte transfer proceeding be consolidated with the complaint proceeding, as a number of the issues were the same.

22. On July 13, the Board received a response to Quast's Protest from the Robert Alfred Estate. The Estate alleged that the factual allegations in the Quast Protest were untrue, and asked that it be given an opportunity to be heard before the Board allows the Protest.

23. On July 14, 1989, Wren, Inc., d/b/a Lakeville Motor Express, filed a Protest of the ex_parte transfer petition. It was marked "timely", as it was postmarked on or before July 13. It essentially repeats the allegations contained in the Quast Protest.

24. On July 31, 1989, D & A Truck Line and the Estate filed a Motion to dismiss a portion of the prayer for relief in the complaint case, on the grounds that the statute required that any suspension or revocation of a permit be preceded by a court's determination that a violation was willful. After the parties to the complaint proceeding had been given an opportunity to file briefs on the question, the Administrative Law Judge denied the Motion by Order of August 23.

25. At some point prior to September 5, the Board referred the ex_parte transfer petition to the Administrative Law Judge for hearing. On September 5, 1989, the Administrative Law Judge sent a memorandum to all counsel in both the complaint case and the transfer case, soliciting their input on the question of consolidating the two. Quast responded in favor of consolidation, while D & A and the Estate responded in opposition to it. On October 5, 1989, the Administrative Law Judge issued an Order consolidating the complaint proceeding and the ex_parte transfer proceeding, but limiting Lakeville's participation to the transfer portion of the consolidated proceeding.

26. The practical impact of the consolidation was to merge together two legal proceedings involving a total of three issues. The first legal proceeding, the "complaint case", involved both a regular route/irregular route issue and an illegal transfer/control issue. The ex_parte transfer proceeding involved the same illegal transfer/control issue, in the context of determining whether or not the proposed transfer was a "bona_fide transfer".

27. On November 8, 1989, Lakeville withdrew from the consolidated proceeding.

28. On November 13, 1989, D & A Truck Line and the Estate filed a Motion for separate trials on the regular route/irregular route issue from the alleged unlawful transfer issue. Grounds for the motion were that if Quast prevailed on the regular route/irregular route issue, there would be no need for a trial of the unlawful transfer issue. The Motion was served upon the Administrative Law Judge, the Board, and counsel for Quast. It was not served upon counsel for Lakeville.

29. On November 15, a prehearing conference was held in the consolidated case. Attending were counsel for D & A, the Estate, and Quast. Lakeville did not attend, and there is no indication that its attorney was even aware of the Motion or the prehearing conference. At the prehearing conference, all counsel agreed that there was a possibility of avoiding a hearing on the transfer/control issue if the regular route/irregular route issue were resolved first

30. A trial on the regular route/irregular route issue did occur on December 4, 5 and 6, 1989, in South St. Paul. The record closed on March 19, 1990, and the Administrative Law Judge issued his Findings of Fact, Conclusions, Recommendation and Memorandum on April 3, 1990. That Report concluded that D & A Truck Line had, in fact, engaged in a regular route operation without a certificate, and recommended that the Board issue a cease and desist Order and suspend the irregular route permit for a period of 21 consecutive days.

31. Following the filing of exceptions and oral argument, the Board issued its Order on the regular route/irregular route issue on August 23, 1990.

The Order adopted the Findings and Conclusions of the Administrative Law Judge. The Order had a number of provisions, the most important of which were:

(1) D & A Truck Line was ordered to cease and desist from regular route operations without a certificate; (2) the irregular route permit was suspended for a period of five consecutive days, stayed until final disposition of the matter; (3) D & A Truck Line was placed on probation for a period of one year under the threat of retroactive suspension or revocation of the permit; and (4)

the control/transfer issue was remanded to the Administrative Law Judge for further proceedings.

32. Immediately after the Board's deliberation, and even before the Board's Order was written up, Quast withdrew its Protest in the transfer proceeding, indicating that its interest in the transfer proceeding was closely related to its complaint action, and the purpose of both was to obtain a Board Order requiring D & A to stop operating as a regular route carrier. In light of the Board's decision to issue a cease and desist Order, Quast had decided to withdraw its Protest in the transfer proceeding. That letter was dated August 8, and received by the Administrative Law Judge on August 9.

33. On August 24, 1990, after reviewing the Board's final Order, the Administrative Law Judge solicited comments from counsel as to whether there was any reason why the entire case should not be returned to the Board with the recommendation that the Board proceed with the transfer issue as an uncontested matter.

34. On August 30, 1990, the Administrative Law Judge received a letter from counsel for Lakeville, indicating Lakeville's strenuous opposition to handling the transfer issue as an uncontested matter.

35. On September 24, 1990, the Board issued an Order denying petitions for reconsideration, rehearing, and similar relief which had been filed by D & A Truck Line and the Estate. On October 9, 1990, the Court of Appeals issued an Order staying the Board's suspension of D & A's irregular route permit until the court could rule on an appeal of the Board's Order on the regular route/irregular route issue.

36. On September 26, 1990, a telephone conference call was held between counsel for Lakeville, D & A Truck Line and the Administrative Law Judge, whereby it was agreed that the parties would submit memoranda on Lakeville's standing and the appropriate way to proceed in light of the Board's remand of the control/transfer issue. Memoranda were received, and on October 29, 1990, the Administrative Law Judge issued his Order reinstating Lakeville as a party, but limiting its participation to the transfer/control issue, and restricting it from participating in any further aspects of the regular route/irregular route issue. The Order contained a memorandum, which explained the basis for it.

37. On December 12, 1990, Lakeville noticed the deposition of Virginia Alfred for January 8, 1991. On December 20, counsel for the Estate (Virginia Alfred is the personal representative of the estate) filed a Motion to delay the hearing. One of the grounds for the Motion was that a deposition of Virginia Alfred could not be complied with due to her health. Attached to it was the af indicating that Mrs. Alfred had suffered a "very serious stroke" in the fall of 1989, but that she was improving. On December 20, her physician, Basil C. LeBlanc, directed a letter to Mr. Donnelly, indicating that although Mrs. Alfred had stabilized and improved, "she still is not fully oriented to time and place She still has persistent impaired judgment and is unable to fully and appropriately manage her affairs." In lieu of the deposition of Virginia Alfred, counsel for Lakeville agreed to substitute depositions of Florian Dittrich and Rosemary Dittrich. Those depositions were taken in New Ulm on January 25, 1991, and were introduced into the record of this proceeding as Exhibits 5 and 6, respectively.

38. On January 4, 1991, a prehearing conference telephone call was held involving Lakeville, D & A and the Estate. On that same date, the Administrative Law Judge issued his Order continuing the hearing to April 23, 1991 in hopes that the Granite_City case (In_the_Matter_of_the_Petition_of_Glen D._Wilson,_d/b/a_Granite_City_Moving_&_Storage,_Transferor,_and_John_S._Herold, Transferee,_to_Transfer_Irregular_Route_Common_Carrier_Permit_Authority, would have been decided by the Court of Appeals. Counsel had asserted that a number of the issues in that case were similar to the critical issues in the control/transfer case, and there was a possibility that the Court's decision might eliminate the need for a hearing in this case.

39. The Minnesota Court of Appeals did issue its decision in the Granite City case on February 19, 1991.

40. On April 23, 1991, a contested case hearing was held on the transfer/control issue. In order to save time, counsel agreed to submit the depositions (Exs. 5 and 6) and prefiled direct testimony (Ex. 3, 4 and 7). The hearing consisted primarily of cross-examination, and was completed in less than a day. Original and reply briefs were submitted, the last being received on July 5.

41. At all times from 1971 to the current date, cab cards have been in the name of "Robert Alfred d/b/a: D & A Truck Line". Ex. 8. However, a 1983 freight bill bears the letterhead "D & A Truck Line/Florian Dittrich, Mgr", with no mention of Robert Alfred. Ex. 4, Attachment 1.

Based upon the foregoing, the Administrative Law Judge makes the following:

CONCLUSIONS

1. That this portion of the consolidated proceeding involves both the transfer/control portion of the initial Quast complaint and the ex parte transfer petition filed by Virginia Alfred and the Estate of Robert Alfred.
2. That the Board gave proper notice of this proceeding and all other substantive requirements of law or rule necessary to vest jurisdiction in the Board and the Administrative Law Judge have been complied with.
3. That the contract between Robert Alfred and Florian Dittrich of May«10, 1969 is clear and unambiguous. As of that date, Alfred sold the permit to Dittrich, and Dittrich acquired the right to control the operations under the permit. After that date, Florian Dittrich was the sole owner of the permit. The agreement to delay the "formal application" for transfer was nothing more than an attempt to avoid the requirements of law. After May 10, 1969, Robert Alfred had no legally cognizable interest in the permit. It, therefore, follows that his estate has nothing to transfer to Virginia Alfred.

In the alternative, if the sale were deemed to be void, then the Estate still holds the permit, but it holds the permit subject to disciplinary action by the Board.

4. If the Board should conclude that there is something that can be transferred to Virginia Alfred, then it is concluded that the appointment of Leo Alfred as her guardian cures whatever defects may arise as a result of her mental incapacity. There is no evidence in the record regarding his fitness, however.

5. The "management" notification given to the Public Service Commission in 1971 has no bearing on the foregoing Conclusions.

THIS REPORT IS NOT AN ORDER AND NO AUTHORITY IS GRANTED HEREIN. THE TRANSPORTATION REGULATION BOARD WILL ISSUE THE FINAL ORDER IN THIS MATTER WHICH MAY ADOPT OR DIFFER FROM THE FOLLOWING RECOMMENDATIONS.

Based upon the foregoing, the Administrative Law Judge recommends to the Board that it issue the following:

That irregular route common carrier Permit No. 6955 be REVOKED;

That the ex_parte petition to transfer said Permit be DENIED.

Dated this _31st_ day of July, 1991.

MEMORANDUM

I.

The contract between Robert Alfred and Florian Dittrich of May 10, 1969 is the crucial and determinative piece of evidence in this case. On that date, Robert Alfred sold to Florian Dittrich "all of his right, title and interest in the socalled white permit plate as irregular route common carrier issued by the Minnesota Public Service Commission which has statewide authority". This conclusion is buttressed by another provision of the contract, which provides:

It is specifically understood by and between the parties hereto that [Dittrich] is the actual owner of the . . . Minnesota Public Service Commission Authority as an irregular route common carrier.

The contract went on to provide that Dittrich would operate the authority, be responsible for all expenses, receive all income and profits, and be responsible for any losses which might occur.

The contract was also clear in providing that the parties desired to operate for at least two years so that when "formal application is made for transfer of the authority", the broadest possible authority could be granted. Dittrich had the right to decide when "formal transfer" would occur, and Alfred was obligated to sign all necessary documents to effectuate the transfer.

In sum, the sale of the permit occurred in May of 1969, but with full knowledge of what they were doing, Dittrich and Alfred agreed to withhold notification to the Commission until Dittrich had been able to operate it so as to achieve the broadest possible authority. The notification to the Commission in 1971 of the Dittrichs as managers did not alter the legal effect of what happened in 1969. The 1971 notification most likely reflects the realization that unless Florian Dittrich was going to give up his livestock permit, there was no way that the IRCC permit could be transferred to him, but in order to avoid any questions regarding Dittrich's role, or questions of Dittrich's authority to file documents with the Commission, he and Alfred agreed to name Dittrich as manager.

D & A and the Estate argue that this case is controlled by the decision of the Court of

It could be argued that the sale back in 1969 was void because Dittrich already had a livestock permit, and thus was prohibited from acquiring another.

If the sale were void, then Robert Alfred would still have owned the permit at the time of his death in 1984, and the permit would have passed to his estate.

It could be further argued (as the Estate does, in fact, argue) that the transfer statute gives the Estate an absolute right to transfer to the widow, and the Board is powerless to prevent it. That argument must fail, however, because the legal status of the permit did not change when it passed to the Estate. The Estate took the permit subject to the same obligations as if Robert Alfred had lived, and still held the permit. As such, the permit is subject to disciplinary action by the Board for failure to report the 1969 transfer of control. The Board is, therefore, fully entitled to take disciplinary action against the permit in the hands of the Estate. If the Board elects to revoke, then the Estate has nothing to transfer to Virginia Alfred. Although it is perhaps only fortuitous, the complaint by Quast was filed before the transfer application was filed, and the Board could legitimately act on the complaint before it acts on the transfer. Moreover, it would be inappropriate to say that the death of a wrongdoer somehow "wipes the slate clean", and prohibits the Board from taking action to enforce the laws. While Virginia Alfred did not personally participate in the sham, the Board ought not to be estopped from taking action designed, in part, to deter others from similar viola tions. If all of these facts had come to light in

-14-

1983, for example, before Alfred's death, the Board certainly could have taken action against the permit. There is no reason why the Board's right is extinguished by his death. This is particularly the case when the action is against the permit, not against the person.

The most difficult question in this part of the consolidated proceeding is to determine the appropriate sanction for the Board to impose. The Administrative Law Judge has recommended revocation based on this part of the case alone, without considering the irregular route/regular route issue. He recommended revocation of the permit because he believes that the record demonstrates a very conscious and knowing effort to avoid the operation of the law over an extended period of time. Florian Dittrich has benefited substantially from the ability to operate his intrastate business without limitation from 1969 onward. But for this evasion and subterfuge, he would still be limited to operations as a livestock carrier. While there has been no evidence of the amount of business that he would have been able to do with only a livestock permit, and thus there is no way that his profits from the illegal operation can be quantified, it is certain that his livestock permit would allow him to do but a fraction of what he has done over the years since 1969.

It can be argued that Virginia Alfred should not be penalized for her husband's and Dittrich's illegal actions. However, her husband voluntarily chose to sell his permit in 1969. He negotiated a price of $2400 for the truck and the permit. Had he sold it to someone other than Florian Dittrich and had the transfer been reported and approved, Virginia Alfred would only share in whatever was left of that $2400 at the time of Robert Alfred's death. Since the $2400 was paid, she has received exactly what she would have gotten if he had chosen to sell it to a "legal" transferee. Therefore, any value that is being taken away from her by virtue of this recommended revocation is something she has no reasonable expectation of receiving.

The person who is being deprived by the revocation is Florian Dittrich, but that is not an inappropriate result, because he is the person who committed the wrongful acts that caused the revocation. Moreover, he ha

II.

At the start of the hearing on April 23, the Estate of Robert Alfred, joined by D & A, made a number of procedural Motions relating to the jurisdiction of the Board and the Administrative Law Judge to hear this portion of the matter. These Motions had not been filed in advance of the hearing, nor had Lakeville been given notice of them. The Administrative Law Judge declined to rule on them at the time, but instead took them under advisement. Lakeville responded to them in its post-hearing briefs, the Estate responded, so they are now ripe for decision.

The first Motion was for dismissal of the matter because the Board allegedly failed to follow the procedures of the ex parte transfer statute. Minn. Stat. § 221.151, subd. 2. Lakeville responds that the Board, in fact, did follow the statute and there is no basis for the Motions. The Administrative Law Judge denies the Motion to dismiss because the Board did follow the statute. The statute directs the Board to allow a "bona_fide transfer" of a permit ex parte without hearing if the transferee is a member of the transferor's immediately family. However, the Board is allowed to consider the contents of the petition, as well as "pertinent information available to the Board and the Department, and their records and files". If it appears to the Board that the petition and exhibits do not reasonably comply with the standards set forth in this section, then after notice to interested parties and the petitioners, the Board may set the matter on for hearing "to determine compliance with this section". It must be remembered that Quast's complaint alleging an undisclosed transfer from Alfred to Dittrich had already been reviewed by the Board and set for hearing well before the ex_parte transfer was even filed. In other words, the Board had already determined that there was a reasonable basis to instigate a proceeding on the complaint. The Board had legitimate grounds for questioning whether or not there could be a "bona«fide transfer". The Board was well within its rights to assign the matter for hearing to determine compliance with the law before allowing the transfer.

The Estate and D & A also moved to prohibit Lakeville from participating in the transfer/control proceeding because it had earlier withdrawn. As fully explained in the Memorandum attached to the Administrative Law Judge's October«29, 1990 Order Reinstating Lakeville as a Party, the balancing of the equities in light of the circumstances surrounding the consolidation and separate trials did, on balance, require that Lakeville be reinstated. That October 29, 1990 Order and Memorandum are part of the record, and the rationale will not be repeated here again.
